

Yeadon Junior School

Dilemma Card

The Neolithic Site...

To dig or not to dig ?

Yeading Junior School

As you make your way to the local park, looking forward to your great bike ride through the woodland areas; you and your family come across a fenced area where an excavation relating to the Neolithic period is being conducted. The archaeological site clearly signals that there is a need for volunteers of any age to participate in an excavation for a couple of hours only. Considering that archaeological sites are often muddy, dusty spaces and involve back-breaking hard work, your mum decides to simply ignore the message from the lead archaeologist. As you ride away from the site, your mum turns to you and gives you the option to be part of this unusual experience. This will benefit the people within the community with a better understanding of those who came before them.

Now that mum has given you permission to take part, what will you do? How do you think taking part will contribute to the greater good of the community?

Think points!

Which Character Virtues
will you be drawing upon?

How can you encourage others to be part of this excellent opportunity?