Yeadon Junior School

You and your family are about to book a three-week summer holiday and your destination is Costa Rica. Two options are presented to you for the same amount of money.

Option one is an eco - friendly way to travel minimising your impact on the environment . On this trip, two days are set aside for your own enjoyment .

Option two is similar in its itinerary and places to visit, but two days are exclusively dedicated to helping in the building of a school which will benefit the community. You will be asked to contribute 10 hours of your time over two days, followed by a thank you dinner offered by the local community. This would be an experience rich in cultural exchange and social interactions.

Whilst your parents are pondering over the two options, they both turn to you and ask you for your opinion. What would you recommend to them and why?

Think points!

Is adding two days to your holiday , specifically dedicated to helping out the community you visit an inconvenience or an imperative? Is there a compromise? Discuss with your group.
