

Maddie Jones 95 November 26th

Dear scientists creating a vaccine,

I am writing to thank you for working tirelessly and sacrificing so much to create a vaccine so that life can return to normal, or as close to it as we can get, once again. My name is Maddie and over the past few months I have been inspired by your work ethic and how much you were willing to sacrifice to speed up this process.

I think a lot of people could really learn a valuable lesson from you about commitment and ~~so~~ ~~and~~ hard work. I believe people should also be extremely grateful to you and both appreciate and acknowledge ~~your~~ how much you've done.

One group of scientists I would like to highlight are the ~~husband-wife led team~~ German-Turkish couple who led one of the endeavors. This couple created ~~a~~ the first possible vaccine, which ~~is~~ has been proved to be 94% effective in the over 65s. They used the experimental approach, but safety did not take a back seat.

A second example I would like to highlight are the scientists in Oxford who have managed to create a ~~is~~ possible vaccine which is 65% effective. This vaccine process was extremely expensive and the cost meant that the university had to put on hold all their other trials.

In conclusion, I admire your perseverance and my wish is that you are successful but continue to make sure safety is not sacrifice.

Yours sincerely, Maddie Jones